MAYOR BOOSTS STADIUM PLAN

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

SPURS' ambitious £400million scheme for a new stadium moved another step closer last week after Boris Johnson granted approval.

The permission from the Mayor of London paves the way for Tottenham Hotspur to proceed with the project to demolish the White Hart Lane ground and replace it with a 61,000-seater arena, as well as a mixed development of skyscrapers and homes surrounding it.

Outline planning consent was received from Haringey Council in December for the scheme, which includes a 35-storey tower, a 12-storey hotel with 180 rooms, 585 new homes and a sports and health centre, as well as an interactive club museum at grade two listed Warmington House, in High Road, Tottenham.

The next step is for the club to sign a Section 106 planning agreement with the council, which legally commits it to the amount of affordable housing and infrastructure as well as its financial obligation.

If that goes through without a hitch, a six-week period follows during which individuals and businesses can oppose the scheme by applying for a judicial review.

If there are no further obstacles, the club could get the go-ahead in April for construction to start.

Focal point: An artist's impression of how the new stadium will look Spurs would spend next season playing their home games elsewhere, with Wembley a possible alternative, and the new stadium would be open in time for the 2018-19 season.

Mr Johnson said: "White Hart Lane is already an iconic stadium, steeped in history, and the new venue will not only almost double its capacity, but provide world-class facilities to watch Premier League football, international sports events and concerts in the heart of the capital."

"The stadium will also be the focal point of a major drive to regenerate Tottenham, breathing new life into the area, creating jobs and boosting growth." City Hall has already invested £28m from the Mayor's Regeneration Fund and the Enterprise Panel into rejuvenating Tottenham and the improvements to White Hart Lane are at the centre of the ongoing regeneration.

Spurs chairman Daniel Levy said: "This marks yet another major milestone for this vital and complex scheme and we are grateful to the mayor for his ongoing support. We remain focused on completing the final stages of the planning process."

Council aims to plug 'funding gap' with tax hike

THE average Haringey household will pay an extra £24 on top of their council tax bills from April.

The charge, agreed at the council's budget-fixing meeting last week, will raise £1.7million towards plugging a £24m funding gap in the social adult care services it provides.

It is in addition to and separate from council tax, which was frozen for a sixth consecutive year by the Labour-controlled local authority at the meeting last Wednesday.

The government has allowed councils to raise revenue this year by a maximum of two per cent of council tax as long as the extra money is used specifically for adult social care.

Cash-strapped Haringey Council has to make £70m of spending cuts by 2018 and has already had to axe some day care centres and services, having seen its central government funding reduced by almost £190m since 2010.

"It's really important to make it clear that the two per cent precept will not be enough to bridge the huge gap we face in funding for adult social care," said Jason Arthur, the council's cabinet member for resources and culture.

"It will help us to meet demand in the short term while we redesign services to have a stronger focus on early help, independent living and community-based support. This is all essential if we are to continue to support our communities in the long term."

The budget package also included a pledge to keep open the borough's nine libraries with an additional £2.75m of improvements, as well as £1m for aids and adaptations to homes of disabled residents and the expansion of a scheme to enable people with mental health problems, older people and care leavers to live independently, as well as £6.5m to maintain roads, pavements and street lighting.

Police appeal to good Samaritans

DETECTIVES want to hear from witnesses who helped scare off an attacker after a woman was thrown to the ground during a terrifying attack on Tottenham Marshes.

The 38-year-old woman was approached from behind by a man as she was walking through the marshes near Mill Mead Road in Tottenham Hale at about 6pm last Tuesday (February 23).

The man threw her to the ground before running off when people on the other side of the River Lea heard her screams.

Police want to hear from those people who have not yet come forward.

The woman suffered some minor injuries to her face, but did not need medical attention.

Police are looking for a slim black man, about six feet tall, who is in his 20s.

They said he was wearing dark clothing at the time of the attack.

Detective Constable Bruce White, from the Met's sexual offences, exploitation and child abuse command, said: "The victim has been left terribly shaken by the events and it is of paramount importance that we trace this man as quickly as possible."

"There were a number of people in and around the area at the time of the incident and we know that there were members of the public who witnessed what happened and intervened by shouting at the suspect, which caused him to flee."

DC White said he was keen to hear from them as soon as possible.

Witnesses should contact the sexual offences, exploitation and child abuse command on 07467 330974 between 8am and 10pm, or via the 101 line.

Council tax freeze ends as the bills are put up

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

COUNCIL tax bills will rise by almost two per cent from April after the local authority voted to end its six-year freeze on the levy Enfield households pay.

At a meeting of the full council at the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, on Wednesday night last week, proposals were put forward to increase council tax by 1.99 per cent.

This will be on top of the government-mandated adult social care levy of two per cent.

However, as this year sees the end of the London 2012 Olympic Games levy, the Labour group were keen to point out that in real terms bills would be going up by 1.78 per cent.

It means an average band D property will pay £1,420.17 in 2016/17.

The leader of the Tory group backed the ringfenced increase for adult health and social care, but refused to endorse the increase in council tax.

The Tories used the meeting to criticise what they termed the Labour group's "ticking financial time-bomb".

Ertan Hurer, a Conservative councillor for Winchmore Hill ward, said that the local authority would not have had to hike council tax if it had listened to advice from the Tories in 2010.

He told the meeting: "We warned them in 2010 not to squander the reserves. We warned them not to increase borrowing."

"A prime example of this is the Enfield Residents' Priority Fund. When the Conservative government got back into power, they realised they had to make savings, so they axed that fund. Now we have a situation where borrowing is up and the reserves are down."

Going up: Council tax bills in Enfield are set to increase by 1.78 per cent

Mr Hurer also criticised the decision to raise leisure centre fees, which, he says, will hit the neediest hardest.

There was a moment of levity during the budget debate when Chris Bond, the former cabinet member for environment, made a point of order to the mayor, pointing out that Michael Lavender, a ward councillor for Cockfosters, was playing the game Candy Crush on his phone.

Mr Lavender acknowledged the point of order, but responded to Mr Bond that he could "multi-task" and so did not need to apologise for playing the game while the debate was going on.

Alessandro Georgiou, a ward councillor for Southgate Green, angered the Labour benches when he told them they should be grateful to central government for the display of "capitalism at its best" as embodied by the new grant settlement from central government. He said that Labour councillors should thank "the brilliant Conservative secretary of state Michael Gove for keeping funding for schools ringfenced."

Mr Georgiou dismissed the administration as "financially illiterate socialists", adding: "As Margaret Thatcher said, 'The problem with socialism is that eventually you run out of other people's money'."

He also criticised the council for failing to preserve all youth services.

However, the cabinet member for children's services Ayfer Orhan said it was "a government failure".

What impact will council's budget cuts have on you?

THIS is the first time in six years that residents in the borough will see their council tax bills go up, writes Ruth McKee. However, it is also the first time the council has revealed the scale of the cuts they need to make in order to stay afloat. All non-statutory youth services will be axed and the borough's streets and parks could look very different this time next year. So how will the new budget cuts affect you?

■ PARKING

The budget sets out that in 2016/17

the council expects to make £150,000 in savings from reviewing the controlled parking zone charges.

Feeling the pinch?: The council is reducing the amount of money spent on keeping parks such as Grovelands, in Winchmore Hill, tidy

Cutting back: Reducing free activities at leisure centres, including Edmonton, will save £100,000

The council states that at the moment the money generated from parking permits does not cover the costs of the CPZs.

They say that new charges will be introduced to "ensure the schemes are cost neutral".

■ STREETS

The council expects to make £90,000 in savings in street cleaning by reducing staff numbers by two drivers and ten cleaning staff for two days a week.

The council says: "Standards of cleanliness will be at risk together with a slower reactive response to littering issues."

■ PARKS

There will be a reduction in how often parks are cleaned across the borough. In 2017/18, £40,000 will be shaved from this part of the budget, with the council asking volunteers to step up to help.

The budget report states: "It is proposed to change the volunteer agreement to target these resources into litter picking to mitigate the impact.

It warns that there will be "increased incidence of overflowing litter bins, particularly during peak summer months."

■ LEISURE

There will be a reduction in free activities in the borough's leisure centres. This is expected to net the council savings of £100,000

■ FEWER FESTIVALS

£22,000 will be shaved from the festivals budget.

The report states: "The team will continue to deliver a festivals programme, in line with the budget available."

■ HOUSING

The council wants to make savings from supported living schemes. This will affect people living with mental health and learning disabilities as well as having an impact on domestic violence services and homelessness prevention.

The budget report states: "The suggested reductions will have a major impact on all clients currently accessing housing related support."

■ ADULT SOCIAL SERVICES

A total of £400,000 is set to be axed from the budget used to transport elderly people around the borough.

■ THOSE WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

A total of £500,000 is to be stripped from the specialist educational needs transport budget over the next two years.

The saving apparently will be made by reviewing the eligibility criteria, providing alternative means of delivery as well as introducing personal transport budgets.

■ YOUNG PEOPLE

All non-statutory youth services are set to be stripped away in order to make a total of £1,699,000 in savings over the next four years.

The council is hoping that charities and volunteers will step in to keep some youth clubs open.

Specialist NEET prevention work will be axed.

Detached youth services and peripatetic youth work teams will no longer operate.

Duke of Edinburgh schemes will be a thing of the past.

Youth Action Volunteering Enfield will be axed.

Summer activities for children during the holidays (including summer university) will be axed.

Youth centre workers will also be axed.

"It was to introduce children to athletics through low-key competitive events with the emphasis on improving their times," said centre manager Mick Bond.

"All the youngsters received medals with golds for the top ten, silver for the following ten and bronze for everyone else," he added. The medals were presented by British international sprinter Bianca Williams, who is a member of Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club.

There were also races for mums and dads, which, according to Mick, "got seriously competitive".

Last call for £1,000 prize nominations

TIME is running out to nominate a charity in Enfield to win £1,000 to spend on a project to benefit the community.

The deadline to enter the contest to win the Vodafone Community Connection Award grant is at 4pm tomorrow (Thursday, March 3).

Nominees so far include Zebra Children's Club, which provides activities for youngsters with special needs.

Children can enjoy fortnightly meetings, craft activities and play in the ball pool as well as a chance to have fun and make new friends.

Another applicant is Enfield Parents and Children's Group, which is based at The Ark, in Montagu Road, Edmonton.

Chief executive Judith Mulligan said she wanted to set up a group where children and young can have a say about the services they want and provide training in self-advocacy, assertiveness and public speaking.

Ms Mulligan said: "In an atmosphere of reduced services we feel it is important that young people know how they can take part in conversations affecting their future, can speak out for what they want and need to thrive and succeed and can play a more active role in their community."

Mental health charity Mind, based in Fore Street, Edmonton, has also been nominated for the award and Enfield Disability Action is also in the running.

The cash cannot be used for any current appeal and nominees must be registered charities.

Send nominations to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk or to Vodafone Community Connection Award, North London and Herts Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT.

A&E situation is a 'travesty', insists Khan

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

LABOUR's candidate in the London mayoral race has branded the current state of the borough's last remaining A&E department a "travesty".

Sadiq Khan met the patient participation group in Forest Primary Care Centre, in Hertford Road, Edmonton, on Monday morning.

North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, the closest hospital to the primary care centre, hit the headlines when it emerged that patients were told over a tannoy announcement to go home unless they had a "life-threatening condition".

Those who stayed in the emergency ward were told to expect waits of up to six hours.

City Hall and the Mayor of London currently have no jurisdiction over health policy, but Mr Khan says that if elected in May he will lobby the government to give him increased powers over health provision in the capital.

He told the Advertiser: "The Mayor of London should be given a leadership and co-ordination role in relation to the health service in London. "I believe the secretary of state is not the right person to decide in relation to some of these things and at the moment I don't have the power, but I'm looking to the government to devolve more power to the mayor."

He said that politicians in Whitehall should not be allowed to make life-or-death decisions over people's access to life-saving healthcare in the capital.

"The NHS in London is in crisis," he said bluntly. "You've got trusts in deficit. It's harder and harder to see your GP."

"The waiting times in A&E are getting longer and longer. There is a black hole in relation to the funding for social care."

"In those circumstances, Londoners have lost confidence, not unreasonably, in their Conservative government, which is why they need a champion, an advocate, a fighter on their side."

He added that local Labour politicians had warned health chiefs that the exact scenario currently playing out at North Middlesex would happen if the emergency unit at Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, was closed, making the point that one A&E to serve a

'NHS in crisis': Labour's London mayoral candidate Sadiq Khan made his claims during a visit to Forest Primary Care Centre, in Edmonton, on Monday

London whole borough was always a recipe for disaster.

He said: "It is a travesty that two Fridays ago at North Middlesex Hospital over the tannoy announcement, because of the pressure on staff, it said unless your condition is life-threatening go home. You have to understand that the staff are working incredibly hard, it's a very underfunded trust. One of the reasons for this is government policy over the last six years."

"If you keep closing down A&Es in London with a rising population, only a Conservative secretary of state, only a Conservative prime minister, would consider closing down those services — aided and abetted by a Conservative mayor."

One of the problems bosses at North Middlesex have admitted is that only nine of the 14 consultants positions in the A&E ward are currently filled.

Mr Khan said that he would be campaigning to keep Britain in the EU based particularly on London's dependence on Europe for jobs, such as those in healthcare that keep hospitals and GP practices running.

"The European Union has brought huge social benefits to our city, huge cultural benefits to our city," he said

"We are safer because of the European Union, we have cross-border cooperation and it has brought economic benefits to London.

"Five hundred thousand jobs in London are directly dependent on us being members of the European Union. 60 per cent of the world's leading companies have their EU headquarters in London and 43 per cent of exports from London go to the European Union."

"In those circumstances, London can't afford a mayor who is not passionately pro EU."

Mr Khan's rivals in the election include Conservative Zac Goldsmith, Liberal Democrat Caroline Pidgeon, the Green Party's Sian Berry and Peter Whittle, representing UKIP.

Three accused of murder lied to police, court told

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THREE people accused of beating to death a young woman repeatedly lied to police about their movements on the night of the killing, a court heard last week.

The body of Hamdi Jiumala, 27, of Linnet Close, Edmonton, was found in the bedroom of a second-floor flat in the Gainsborough House tower block, on the Ayley Croft estate, in Bush Hill Park, on the evening of Thursday, September 17, last year.

Walid Ibrahim, 34, of Tottenham, north London, Macdalena Agathine, 21, of Highbury, north London, and Kinse Aidid, 20, from Hayes, west London, are jointly accused of beating Hamdi to death between 9.30pm on September 16 and 8am the following day.

Anthony Orchard, QC, prosecuting, told the Old Bailey that CCTV evidence and phone records prove the defendants were lying to police when they insisted they were either sleeping, or had already left the flat, when the woman was killed.

Mr Orchard said that Agathine told police she had slept deeply from Wednesday night to Thursday evening.

However, he told jurors: "Police inquiries into the events that night revealed that Agathine's phone had made both What's App and normal calls to a man by the name Jermaine Sylvester.

"At 3.05 and 3.35 on the Thursday morning, Mr Sylvester spoke with Agathine. The first call lasted for 23 minutes, the second for four minutes. During those conversations, he says: 'She was drunk, she was repeatedly interrupted by a girl called Kinse. A third girl could be heard in the background (this would be Hamdi, indicating she was still alive at 3.35am). A man's voice could be heard and it sounded like an argument was going on in the background. The man said, "* off" (this must be Walid Ibrahim and Hamdi Jiumala)."

Crime scene: Gainsborough House

The jury heard that after seeing a missed call and a series of messages from Agathine at 7.26 in the morning he called her at 9.39.

"She told him that the girl (Hamdi) had been rude to them and had argued with the guy and that she and Kinse had beaten the girl up "pretty badly", the court was told.

"He could hear Kinse in the background saying, 'Yeah, we hear her up'. Agathine added that Kinse had thrown the girl to the floor and continued to punch and kick her while she (Agathine) had laughed."

The court also heard that, despite Aidid telling police she had slept deeply in the flat for a period of 26 hours, from 6pm on the Wednesday to 8pm on the Thursday, "the Aidid phone was used on September 17 to make and receive calls at 10.55, 11.00, 11.15, 11.21, 16.19, 16.20 and 19.54".

Mr Orchard also told the jury that Ibrahim's account to police of his movements on the night and morning of the killing was a lie.

"Walid Ibrahim claimed in his interview that he left Gainsborough House between 5.30am and 6.30am on September 17," he said. "This was the last time he saw Hamdi alive and well. CCTV shows Ibrahim left Gainsborough House at 07.51."

Jurors were also shown CCTV footage from outside Gainsborough House at 9.20pm on September 16 of a woman being attacked.

A neighbour in flats opposite the tower block had seen two women fighting about ten feet from her window.

"One of the women was attacking the other," the court heard. "The attacker was on top of the second female. The second woman was pinned to the pavement by the attacker. The attacker grabbed the other woman's hair and banged her head against the pavement several times. The attacker grabbed the other woman by the hair and punched/slapped her several times.

"It is now accepted that the woman described as the attacker was Kinse Aidid. CCTV analysis shows the second woman to be Hamdi Jiumala," Mr Orchard told the court.

All three defendants deny murder. The trial continues.

Grant boost for school therapy

CHILDREN will benefit from art, dance and drama therapy after their school in Edmonton was awarded thousands of pounds in grant funding from the BBC's Children in Need appeal.

West Lea School, in Haselbury Road, is running a project to help youngsters with psychological and behavioural needs and has secured a £41,623 grant to employ three therapists to visit the 20 schools in the Edmonton Schools Partnership.

The therapists will lead sessions in drama, dance and movement therapy in one-to-one and group sessions.

MP's EU stance

THE report in last week's Advertiser on which way the borough's three MPs proposed to vote in the EU referendum may have given the wrong impression that David Burrowes believed that instead of increased funding to ease pressure on overstretched health, housing and public services, a solution would be stricter controls on EU migrants.

The Conservative MP for Enfield and Southgate has asked us to point out that he did not say that.

What he said was: "We should welcome the skills we need and provide refuge to those that need sanctuary.

"However they do have a problem with the lack of control over EU migration which impacts on public services like housing, schools and our local health service. I want our country to take back control and have a new relationship with Europe based on trade and cooperation."

We are happy to make that clear and apologise for any confusion caused.

Attention: DENTURE WEARERS

If you are a denture wearer then this article may be of some interest to you!!
If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:

- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
- Are they loose?
- Do not cut food as well as they used to?
- Do they make your face look older?
- Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
- Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

A more direct, rapid and personalised service, that can be delivered to you in the comfort of your own home or at my day clinic in Edmonton.

If you wish to discuss any denture related issues please do not hesitate to contact me on:

Council bides time over cycle scheme

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE man at the centre of the Cycle Enfield proposals has reached out to reassure he will not be pushing ahead with plans before further talks with community groups.

Daniel Anderson, the cabinet member for environment, told the Advertiser that residents and campaigners have no need to fear that the council will begin work transforming Enfield Town into a cycling haven in the immediate future.

"People may have seen that Cycle Enfield in Enfield Town is due to be passed in April," he said, "but that is not the case at all."

"No decision has been made. We have released the results of the consultation and we are currently reviewing it."

"The dates in April are only preliminary dates. Nothing is even on the table until such time as we can look in detail into the feedback that was provided in the consultation."

Between September and December last year, people were asked to give their views on two options for transforming Enfield Town into a bike-friendly zone. One option outlined was a two-way cycle lane in Church Street separated from east-bound bus traffic by a broad stretch of landscaped pavement.

According to the results, 30 per cent of the 2,707 people who responded to the consultation supported this option, while 64 per cent were against it.

The other option was a two-way cycle lane in the centre of Church Street with east and westbound bus traffic on either side of cyclists.

This fared worse in the public's minds with just 15 per cent supporting that option and 69 per cent opposed to it.

Although Helen Osman, of the Save Our Green Lanes campaign, had voiced concern that in the face of such overwhelming public opposition the council was set to push forward with the scheme, Mr Anderson was emphatic.

"There are no plans to push forward until such times as we have gone through the consultation responses in greater detail," he said.

Seeing the funny side: Marc Day with cast members from his show, Brains: A Personal Story, which is being staged at the Dugdale Centre, in Enfield Town, next week

‘Has everyone in a hat got a tumour?’

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

PLAYWRIGHT Marc Day has found the funny side – if there is one – to life with a brain tumour in new play which opens in Enfield next week.

Brains: A Personal Story is based on his own experiences since he was diagnosed with a brain tumour in March 2013.

Mr Day is the creative producer at the Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, Edmonton, and the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, and writes the annual panto designed to make audiences laugh.

He decided to keep the humour in a play about his tumour, which he first started writing in coffee shops as he waited for treatment.

“More people under the age of 40 die of a brain tumour than from any other cancer, so I wanted to use this theatre piece and my personal experience to improve social awareness of the disease,” he said.

He had suffered two seizures in the months leading up to the diagnosis when he was 39 and suffered a dislocated shoulder during the second episode after falling off a chair at work.

A third one happened on the day he was due to undergo surgery in hospital in central London to remove part of the tumour.

Since then he has gone through 36 sessions of radiotherapy and six cycles of six weekly chemotherapy to shrink the tumour. At first Mr Day wrote about his experiences for himself as an outlet for his feelings, but then his boss suggested turning it into a play.

“I was looking for something to do with the talented bunch of actors I was working with,” he said.

The show includes songs, but ultimately, said Mr Day, it is a story about his emotions.

However, he said he also decided to lighten it with some of funny things which have happened along the way.

“Where possible, I have used humour to make the piece upbeat with more appeal to audiences,” he said. “Humour played a part along my journey as I made certain observations, making sense of things.”

He said the sight of a group of people wearing hats made him laugh. “Early on, for example, I was told that people with a brain tumour should wear a hat,” he said.

“It was when I was standing on a fairly cold platform waiting for a train that would take me to my daily dose of radiotherapy and I saw the majority of my fellow commuters wearing a hat, and I couldn’t help thinking: ‘Does everyone wearing a hat have a brain tumour?’ Well it makes you think, doesn’t it?”

The show runs at the Dugdale from Tuesday, March 8, to Thursday, March 10, at 7.45pm.

Tickets cost £12, or £11 online.

Fire crews fight blaze in pallet yard

MORE than 70 firefighters tackled a blaze which broke out in the early hours of yesterday morning in a pallet yard in Whitewebbs Lane, Enfield.

The blaze broke out in a stack of wooden pallets and a timber storage warehouse in which there were believed to be a quantity of propane gas cylinders which are highly explosive if exposed to high temperatures.

About 30 propane gas cylinders were moved from the site.

Deputy Assistant Commissioner Graham Ellis said from the scene: “The fire is likely have affected the morning rush hour as smoke was traveling across the M25 between junctions 24 and 25. We asked residents to avoid Whitewebbs Lane as it was closed.”

The London Fire Brigade was called at 2.03am. The cause of the fire is not known at this stage.

Meanwhile, motorists reported that there were ash and sparks drifting towards both carriageways of the M25.

Cloudy2Clear Announce Trusted Trader Partnership

Consumer champions Which? have now joined the thousands of customers who recognise that Cloudy2Clear Windows really are a business that you can TRUST. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has received the coveted ‘Which? Trusted Trader’ status after going through a rigorous accreditation process entirely focussed on customer service.

Group Managing Director Marcus McGee believes that Which? have endorsed Cloudy2Clear’s long standing company policy of delivering the highest standards possible at all times. “Our service is simple. If your double glazing has misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it’s not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Whilst a number of tradespeople perhaps don’t focus on customer care as much as they should do, we make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. Locally Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and manager Richard Power agrees that this approach is a major factor in his success. “The truth is that it’s not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I’ve done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated as both my customers and, obviously a body as nationally important as Which? now recognise.”

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he’ll be happy to help!

Enfield Council leader

EVERY year the council sets its budget, agrees the council tax levels and prioritises what to spend money on. This is getting a progressively harder task as government funding cuts – 49 per cent in real terms since 2010 – and increasing resident demand squeeze us.

This year, your council tax bill will rise by 1.78 per cent, but this is after six years where we have had no Enfield increase in the tax. During that time, through mostly efficiency savings and cutting back on some areas, we have made huge savings. However, we will have less ability to deliver the quality of services I would like.

Part of our problem is that historically Enfield is underfunded compared with many other councils. Our needs, as measured by income, poverty, age profile and the like, are not being met. The government is aware and funds some other authorities with lower needs, much better. I think that is wrong, and costs us £10 million per year. Just getting what we deserve would solve a lot of our problems. Therefore, I am launching a Fair Funding for Enfield campaign. I want all of the Enfield community to let government know that we must not be short-changed.

We have consulted on our budget and we know the services most cherished. I am also aware that our services are often a safety net and crucial provision for people with a need. Having to balance the budget each year means taking cash from service areas we cherish, but we can't spend what we haven't got.

So over the next few years we need to be clear with you that we will do our best to protect services and meet your needs, but this will not be easy and tough decisions will have to be made about what services matter most.

Where is the justice for overworked doctors?

I APPLAUD Joan Ryan, the MP for Enfield North, for her support of junior doctors in their fight for better working conditions.

Their confrontation with the government could be resolved if more doctors were employed.

It is deplorable, in this day and age, that people who dedicate their working lives to saving lives are required to work 70 hours a week when the majority of the UK's workforce enjoy 40-hour weeks or less. No wonder junior doctors complain of fatigue and warn of risk to patients.

The government is at fault for insisting on seven-day improved medical care without adequate staff.

Before the war, a 48-hour week was common practice among the UK's workforce.

After the war, with union help, hours reduced to provide more leisure time.

MPs, who make the rules, now attend only four days a week and enjoy a long summer break, as well as bank holiday and school term times – all of this with an improved salary of £73,000.

How much leisure time is available to junior doctors working a 70-hour week? Where is the justice in this?

We ignore emergency care crisis at our peril

I AM writing in response to the emergency situation facing Enfield's only remaining A&E department at North Middlesex University Hospital featured last week in your paper, the London Metro and the Telegraph, to name but a few sources.

During the last winter period when Chase Farm A&E was still open (2012/13), ambulances never had to be diverted away from either Barnet or the North Middlesex hospitals. (Mail on Sunday, February 16, 2014)

After the A&E was closed at Chase Farm Hospital, NHS statistics show that ambulances had to wait outside Barnet Hospital for more than 30 minutes on 236 occasions during a two-month period.

As was shown last week, the increase in "ambulance stacking" outside North Middlesex Hospital has been even more alarming. During the two months following the closures at Chase Farm, ambulances had to wait over 30 minutes on 941 separate occasions (or 14 times per day.)

Despite these alarming figures, it is very clear from the papers last week that little has been done to deal with the developing crisis.

Successive governments have supported the fragmentation and privatisation of the NHS, disguised behind a smokescreen of "choice" and "competition". What we are seeing now is a direct result. The cuts at Chase Farm never lead to "healthy hospitals" or "safer, closer or better" healthcare for anyone.

Emergency care is very expensive and not very appealing to the private sector. How many private hospitals have A&E departments?

However, this does not mean that they are no longer needed.

The tragic photos taken at North Middlesex and NHS statistics show that they are.

The lack of accessible emergency care currently across the borough is unacceptable and inhumane.

During the decade of campaigning against these cuts, all of the MPs (cross-party) and our current Prime Minister were all keen to be seen to support the campaign.

Photographs from various marches and meetings (not organised by them) have repeatedly been used during election campaigns.

Now is the time for some honesty and real, meaningful action.

We call upon all MPs and Mr Cameron to honour a decade of promises and instruct the Royal Free to reinstate front-line services, fit for purpose, on the Chase Farm site.

The justification for £30m cycle scheme is clear for us all to see

I AM appealing to your readers to volunteer for Marie Curie's Great Daffodil Appeal in March and help people living with a terminal illness and their loved ones in Enfield.

We're asking people to "get behind the daffodil" by giving a couple of hours of their time to volunteer for the appeal in March. All they need to do is encourage people to give a donation in return for a daffodil pin. Past volunteers have said it's a fun way to do something rewarding and meet others from their community at the same time.

Volunteering for the Great Daffodil Appeal – now in its 30th year – will help Marie Curie Nurses provide care and support for people living with a terminal illness in their own homes or your local Marie Curie Hospice, Hampstead, so they can spend more time with the people they love.

If you're able to volunteer some time to help, then please contact me on 020 7853 3411 or sign up online at www.mariecurie.org.uk/collections.

Include a daytime phone number for verification. We reserve the right to edit letters.

Do you have time to spare?

THIS week (February 23) the Royal Colleges of Paediatrics and Child Health and Physicians published detailed findings on air pollution.

As well as 40,000 annual UK deaths, they linked air pollution to cancer, heart disease, stroke, obesity, diabetes, and dementia and, in the youngest, as a cause of premature and still births, with term babies having lower birth weight and smaller heads (brains).

Damage and effects are also pointed out to the hormone and immune systems, brain development, intelligence and coordination. The associated costs to the UK exceed £20billion each year. Vehicle exhausts are recognised as the most significant cause, damaging health from our very youngest through to old age.

The Royal Colleges indicate it is their duty to speak out when faced with such a clear and avoidable cause of death, illness and disability.

Their call is for urgent, community-wide action to protect the health, well-being and economic sustainability of present and future generations, where everyone accepts personal responsibility and makes concerted efforts to change behaviours.

Central to this is a request to move away from petrol and diesel cars towards public transport, walking and cycling.

We can each help by carefully considering each and every car journey for its need and possible alternative. An ambition of half of our car journey switching mode would be stretching, yet surely achievable for many.

The borough of Enfield has been awarded £30million to assist in the early years of such a transformation.

For the voices and politicians who have the stated intent to reject this seed-corn funding, this undoubted moral and financial case is now as clear as the original bid's strategic justification.

The health and well-being of all of Enfield's residents should now be reflected in unambiguous, reconsidered positions.

Full steam ahead

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THICK white plumes of steam billowing in the wake of a brightly painted train as it emerges, whistling and rattling, from the mouth of a tunnel is the archetypal image of our Victorian heritage – a symbol of the power of the locomotive age.

And, on Thursday, almost 100 years after The Flying Scotsman was built in 1923, the crowd of people gathered on the central platform of Hadley Wood station were able to see the great train fly once again – watching in real time an image most would only have seen in archive footage, or in period dramas.

Children brandishing balloons shared platform space with brightly anoraked enthusiasts excitedly setting up camera tripods and even the commuters were able to muster enough interest to look up briefly from their smartphones to watch as the iconic engine ploughed through the station – its windows already steamed up with the breath of excited passengers, many of whom had paid the £450 ticket price for the day trip to York.

In contrast to some of the modern trains passing through the station ahead of its stately arrival, it was on time and every passenger appeared to have a seat.

Francesca Caine, the chair-

Flying visit: The Flying Scotsman passes through Hadley Wood station on its journey north last Thursday woman of the Hadley Wood Rail User Group, organised the show of support on the platforms for the recommissioned steam engine.

“Nigel Gresley, who designed it, lived around here, in Hadley Wood and I am sure he would be very proud to see all these people out to cheer on his record-breaking engine.”

More than 100 people braved frosty temperatures and waited on the platform for a glimpse of the train while TV helicopters hovered overhead, their distinctive thudding adding to the anticipation down below.

Thrilled with how the morning had gone, Mrs Caine added: “It is absolutely fabulous.

“I am so pleased that so many people came out, especially the children. It will be the first time any of them have seen a steam train and this isn’t just any steam train – this is our steam train, coming up the east coast rail line.”

The Flying Scotsman was the first train to make the continuous journey from London to Edinburgh under steam power.

It was also the first locomotive in Britain to reach a top speed of more than 100 miles an hour.

The Flying Scotsman will be at the National Railway Museum, in York, until March 6 when it will embark on a tour around the country.

Tornado Clem plays on new version of 1962 number one

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

CELEBRATED drummer Clem Cattini has just recorded a new version of one of the most iconic tracks of the 1960s.

Clem, who has featured on more than 40 number one records, went back into the recording studio for a new version of the 1962 instrumental hit Telstar, which went to the top of the charts on both sides of the Atlantic for The Tornados.

He lives in Winchmore Hill and agreed to record a new version with The Skammers.

They took just four hours to make the recording at the Satellite recording studio, in Queensway, Ponders End.

Clem said: "We just went in there and rehearsed it a couple of times. If it gets to number one, it will be great."

The 78-year-old has played with many of the greats of rock and pop royalty, including Paul McCartney, Tom Jones and Dusty Springfield.

The self-taught drummer said: "My music lessons at school were when the geography teacher came in and put on an LP of classical music. I've had 50 years in the business."

He answered an advert for a session band which led to the birth of The Tornados.

Telstar was named after a communications satellite and the record was one of the first number ones by a British group in America.

The Tornados backed Billy Fury in 1962 and 1963.

"It was exciting to get a number

Drum role: Clem Cattini, with The Skammers, Stewart Bell, Spencer Wade, Julian Defries and Rich Alancroft

one," said Clem, who was a member of the The Tornados until 1965. "It was good at the time."

Actor James Corden played Clem in the 2008 film Telstar; The Joe Meek Story.

Clem added: "James was not that well-known at the time. He came round and had a cup of tea. I think his father was a drummer."

Clem played a chauffeur in the film.

Spencer Wade, from the Skammers, who persuaded Clem to play on the new single, said: "It did feel amazing to play with someone so well-respected."

"Even the engineer was in shock about who he had in the studio."

The single is due to be released this March.

Obese youngsters are on the way up

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

CHILDREN in the borough are fighting against a rising tide of obesity levels, despite the local authority launching a raft of initiatives to help lower the problem in the very young.

The latest figures for Enfield show that 24.6 per cent of ten and 11-year-olds in the borough are officially classed as obese.

The figures show a slight increase from last year when 24.1 per cent of the same age group were classed in this category.

It is a bitter blow for Enfield Council, which tried to get kids living more healthily with ramped-up fitness classes and healthy eating promotions in primary schools after figures in 2012 showed the borough had the second highest childhood obesity rates in London with 25.1 per cent of ten and 11-year-olds classed as obese.

The figures improved the next year with just over 23 per cent of kids in the obese category – but the numbers have been inching up again in the last two years.

Nneka Keazor, the council's cabinet member for public health and sport, said: "Levels of obesity are increasing across western Europe and tackling the issue is a major challenge at a continental, national and local level which will require concerted action at both European Union and United Kingdom government levels.

"Consequently, the council, in partnership with colleagues working in the NHS, schools and children's centres and sport and leisure facilities has developed a wide range of initiatives designed to give families the advice and support they need to adopt more healthy lifestyles, live more active lives and therefore achieve a healthy weight.

"All partners working with children and families continue to regard this work a priority as part of the suite of services to the local community."

The figures emerged as part of Labour candidate Sadiq Khan's campaign setting out what he would do to improve the health of the capital's kids including demanding that the next Mayor of London be given additional powers to plan and coordinate health services across the city.

He said: "Across London almost a quarter of 10 to 11-year-olds are clinically obese and the figure is going up every year. It is particularly bad in Enfield, having increased by 8.6 per cent since 2010.

"The government has no answer to the country's growing obesity crisis. They have failed to deliver a lasting legacy from the Olympics, they have consistently failed to deliver health improvements and now they are delaying the very thing they hope might address that shortfall.

"A national sugar tax could play a significant role in solving the obesity crisis and it is frustrating that the government is ruling it out."

Ertac gets a ringing endorsement

By Julia Gregory
julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A BRAVE boy has marked the end of three-and-a-half years of gruelling chemotherapy by sounding a special “end of treatment” bell.
Eight-year-old Ertac Yusuf, from Bush Hill Park, rang the bell at Barnet Hospital to celebrate the red letter day when his treatment for leukaemia came to an end – and staff from the paediatric oncology team were on hand to hear the joyful sound.

Ertac, who is a pupil at Raglan Junior School, in Raglan Road, Bush Hill Park, has also had chemotherapy at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, during the three-and-a-half years he has been having treatment, as well as at Barnet.
He has had to visit every four weeks for the gruelling rounds of chemotherapy.

His mother Derya said that she was delighted Ertac could enjoy ringing the bell to mark the end of the tough treatment.

She said: “It feels so good that this is finally finished and there is a light at the end of the tunnel.”

She added: “It has been really hard. Our whole life has been focused around Ertac’s treatment. He has two siblings and their lives have been affected by this, too.”

She said it was a special day when her son could ring the bell to mark the end of his treatment.

The bell has been installed at Barnet Hospital to give young patients a symbolic way of celebrating reaching the end of their chemotherapy.

It was donated by the End of Treatment Bells organisation, which is providing special bells for children throughout the country.

Kate Owen, who is lead nurse for paediatric oncology at the hospital, said: “Treatment for leukaemia can last for more than three years, so young children might not even remember what life was like before they started the chemotherapy.

“Ringing the bell marks the moment when, hopefully, they can try to begin to move on with their lives.”

Ertac’s mum added: “When he was first diagnosed, he was very unwell and we thought there was no hope – but after a year or so things really started to improve.

“The staff at Barnet and Chase Farm have been a miracle and the bell is brilliant. Watching Ertac ringing it brings all this to a close.”

And another youngster, Zara Yurtseven, from Cockfosters, also rang the bell to mark the end of two years of chemotherapy.

The 11-year-old, a pupil at Palmers Green High

For him, the bell tolls: Ertac Yusuf does the honours to mark the end of his treatment and, top, with his parents Erkan and Derya and Jen, Bill and Zara Yurtseven

School, said: “When I started my treatment, I wasn’t really aware of what was happening – but I became more aware in the middle, so I’m really excited to finish and be able to ring the bell.”

Tributes paid after motorcyclist death

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

TRIBUTES have been paid to a motorcyclist who died in a collision with a car in Enfield last week.

He has been named as Tube driver Steven Barnard, 36, from Ware, in Hertfordshire, who had previously worked as a bus driver at Ponders End garage, in Southbury Road, and later as bus controller at Edmonton bus garage at the Lea Valley Trading Estate, in Angel Road.

The fatal accident on the A10 Great Cambridge Road at the junction with Crown Road on Tuesday at about 5.20pm closed the road northbound and caused widespread traffic disruption.

Mr Barnard's father Peter said: "As a controller at Edmonton bus garage, he was thought of as still being 'one of the drivers'. He understood and remembered his days of being in the driver's seat.

"He was always up for a laugh and loved a practical joke. His laugh was something people remember and it was infectious whether you were being laughed at or if he made you laugh," he added.

Bus company Arriva London, which operates the two Enfield bus garages where Mr Barnard worked, also paid tribute to him this week.

"He was a valued and well-respected member of our team and will be sadly missed," said a spokesman.

"We were deeply saddened to hear the news of Steven's passing. Our thoughts and sympathies are with his family at this time," he added.

The accident is being investigated by officers from the Met's serious collision investigation unit, which is appealing for witnesses.

Tragedy: Steven Barnard

The woman driver of the car stopped at the scene. She has not been arrested and is helping police with their inquiries.

Any witnesses or anyone with any information can contact the serious collision investigation unit witness line on 020 8597 4874.

Four arrested in wine bar fraud probe

AN Edmonton man was among four people arrested by detectives investigating a £300,000 wine bar insurance fraud.

The arrests followed a series of dawn raids on five addresses in Enfield, Edmonton, Waltham Abbey and Chingford last week by officers from the City of London Police's specialist Insurance Fraud Enforcement Department and the Metropolitan Police.

The 28-year-old man was arrested in Edmonton on suspicion of conspiracy to defraud and money laundering offences.

It relates to a suspected fraud involving several insurance claims over the years, including loss of earnings and material damage, by owners of The Lounge wine bar, in Sleaford, Lincolnshire, following extensive water damage at the venue.

However, investigators working for the insurance company suspect the bar was never open or operating as a business when the latest claim, in the region of £100,000, was made.

The case was referred to the City of London Police Insurance Fraud Enforcement Department and its officers are now investigating two other similar claims linked to the venue made at different times with other insurers.

"We're still investigating to establish the extent of this fraud, but it highlights that fraudsters are continually looking for new ways to con businesses and people out of money," said Detective Chief Inspector Oliver Little. "Insurance fraud costs the public and businesses millions every year in increased premiums and we work with the industry to identify and prosecute the fraudsters who are causing the most harm," he added.

"Any business owners thinking of making fraudulent claims as a way of making some quick cash should reconsider. Such claims will be identified and investigated, and could lead to a criminal conviction."

"I don't have to guess where I am anymore"

Eight years for gun boy

Gary's clean sweep

By Russ Lawrence
russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A 16-YEAR-OLD boy from Upper Edmonton has been sentenced to eight years behind bars after he and two other gang members were found to be in possession of a loaded shotgun.

The boy, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was in a Citroen car which detectives from the Met Police's Trident Area Crime Command – which tackles gang crime – stopped in Islington, north London, in August last year.

A search of the car uncovered the loaded shotgun, as well as a knife. All five people in the car were arrested and charged with possession of a prohibited firearm with intent to commit an indictable offence.

The boy was also charged with possession of an offensive weapon.

He was found guilty by a jury at Wood Green Crown Court last week.

Olatunji Ladejobi, 21, from South Ockendon, Essex and Elvis Kisikidi, 20, of Barking, east London, were also found guilty and received 11-year jail terms.

Henrikas Lozovskis, 25, from Dagenham, east London, and Kaelem Wynter, from Borehamwood, Hertfordshire, were acquitted of all charges.

Detective Constable Tom Wiles, of the Met's Trident and Area Crime Command, said: "The sentencing should send out a clear message to those affiliated with gangs.

"Tackling gang-related violence remains a key priority for us and we will continue to target and convict those who are involved in this lifestyle.

"A firearm has been seized and taken off the streets and three very dangerous people will now face a significant period behind bars where they are unable to continue causing fear, alarm and misery to local residents," Mr Miles added.

FORMER Tottenham Hotspur and England footballer Gary Mabbutt is joining the campaign to give the borough a good clean-up as part of the national Clean for the Queen campaign.

Mr Mabbutt joined community volunteers at the Queen Elizabeth Stadium, in Donkey Lane, Enfield.

The Spurs ambassador said: "We would like to encourage residents to get out and do their bit to make Enfield look the part ahead of Her Majesty's birthday."

The Clean for the Queen campaign runs from Friday to Sunday to clear up grot spots in Enfield and throughout the UK before the Queen's 90th birthday in April.

Pride: Former Spurs skipper Gary Mabbutt, the leader of Enfield Council Doug Taylor

Enfield Council already spends £4.4million cleaning up the borough and welcomed communities getting involved in the national campaign.

John Hall, who is the chairman of the Friends of Enfield Playing Fields, is gearing up for a big clear-up on Saturday.

He said people are welcome to join in a litter pick starting at 10am outside the Queen Elizabeth Stadium.

They should bring gloves and wear suitable clothing. Bin bags and other equipment will be provided.

Mr Hall said: "Anything which raises the awareness about litter is good. If you leave it, you will go round ankle deep in stuff."

He said it was important to educate people about looking after their communities and it was often "carelessness and mindlessness" which meant that rubbish was thrown in streets, parks and beauty spots.

"Hopefully, this event will give them a sense of pride," added Mr Hall.

Other Clean for the Queen events in Enfield include a litter pick which starts at 9.30am from the junction of Lowther Drive and Enfield Road, in Oakwood, tomorrow (Thursday).

Nigel King, who is organising that clean-up, said: "When the Queen came to the throne, litter was not the problem it is today."

Volunteers will meet at the entrance to Pymmes Park in Victoria Road, Edmonton, at noon for a two-hour event on Friday.

East Enfield Brownies are also joining the campaign with a litter pick around Enfield Highway Library, in Hertford Road, on Saturday.

There's a clean-up from 10am to noon on Saturday at Firs Farm, meeting at the car park in Firs Lane, Winchmore Hill.

Volunteers can also meet at the entrance to Hilly Fields Park, opposite St Luke's Church, in Phipps Hatch Lane, North Enfield, at 1.45pm on Saturday.

Explosive drama back in West End

THE Jamie Lloyd Company's first production of 2016 will be the full-throttle UK premiere of a contemporary adaptation of Jean Genet's masterpiece The Maids – not seen in the West End for 20 years – and we have three pairs of tickets to give away.

Director Jamie Lloyd has assembled a powerhouse trio of actors – double Emmy Award-winning Uzo Aduba (Orange is the New Black), Zawe Ashton (Fresh Meat) and Laura Carmichael (Downton Abbey) – to tackle this explosive psycho-drama.

In a luxurious bedroom, two maids fantasise about killing their employer, playing out dangerous and sadistic scenarios as they plan her violent death.

An intense psychological thriller seething with unique theatricality and brimming with intrigue, The Maids is a vicious analysis of the class system and a provocative exploration of sexuality.

The production runs for a limited season until May 21, 2016, at Trafalgar Studios, in Whitehall, London.

For more details, visit <http://www.atgtickets.com/>

Plumber hopes for a clean sweep with his new invention

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A PLUMBER is hoping that his self-cleaning toilet will make him flush with success.

Mariusz Kurtycz has spent six years developing the invention and made several visits to China to perfect it.

He has been awarded a patent to protect the rights to his invention and is now starting to sell the toilets after his first container of 170 loos arrived in the UK.

The 42-year-old, who lives in Henry Close, Enfield, said: "I'm a normal guy who has done something that no one has done in the world."

It has been a long road from sketching out the idea to perfecting it and Mr Kurtycz first contacted a factories in the UK, but was offered a low return on any items he sold.

He decided to get on a plane to find a factory in China which could make a prototype.

In the end he sourced different parts at four different factories. He started on his first designs in May 2009 and was granted the patent in 2013.

His wife Sylwia has supported his ideas and they have sacrificed holidays while he has been working to get the invention up and running.

Mr Kurtycz said: "There were a lot of complications, but I have worked with the factories to solve the problems."

His toilet includes remote controlled ventilation to help keep things pong-free when people spend a penny.

He said he had to spend some time experimenting with designs to create a quiet fan.

Mr Kurtycz has also developed a container for cleaner in the bowl, so it is automatically cleaned every time the toilet is flushed.

He is now showing his invention to bathroom shops and has ambitions to get on to BBC2's Dragons' Den TV show to pitch for funding from the programme's entrepreneurs.

Man's body found in Thames

THE body of man who disappeared from his Palmers Green home last month has been found in the River Thames.

Police had been trying to trace 29-year-old Obi Xipe Khan since he was reported missing on January 12.

Officers issued a series of appeals after becoming alarmed when they discovered letters he had sent to two friends.

Although they did not disclose the contents of the letters, the Met stepped up their efforts to trace the missing man. Last Thursday, officers from the Marine Police unit found the body of a man in the Thames.

Although formal identification is yet to take place, police believe the man is Mr Khan, pictured left, who was also known as Ekbai Obi Khan.

Next of kin have been informed.

At this stage the death is not being treated as suspicious.

Inquiries into the circumstances of the death are being carried out by police officers from Enfield.

DO YOU STRUGGLE TO HEAR?

A reduction in hearing could just be a build-up of ear wax. In the past wax removal often relied on softening drops and removal by syringing with water. However, the latest pain free and preferred method of wax removal is Microsuction, performed using a microscope and a finely calibrated suction device.

WHAT IF I DO NEED A HEARING AID?

Lyric is a new type of implantable hearing aid that can be worn for up to three months at a time, without the need for daily insertion or removal – or the need to change batteries.

Take a bow: The Estrellas are bringing their Stars of Soul show to the Dugdale Centre in Enfield Town

Trio look to the stars

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

FEMALE singing trio The Estrellas make their bow performing for a theatre audience for the very first time when they bring their Stars of Soul show to Enfield's Dugdale Centre this week.

Their act, which recreates the sounds of soul and Tamla Motown from the 1960s and 1970s has been entertaining major corporate and private events including wedding parties and family functions across the UK since 2013.

Supported by a live five-piece band, instead of performing to backing tapes, and with the 20-strong Natural Voice Choir singing backing vocals on one of the two nights they are to appear at the Dugdale (Friday and Saturday), it's a dream debut for the threesome.

"The girls are really excited," said their manager Ella Louise Woodhouse, who herself performed with vintage 1940s and 1950s' group The Polka Dots.

"It's more thrilling than when they performed alongside The Jacksons at the 2014 Henley Festival," she added. "This takes their performance to a new level."

Adorned in sparkling sequinned dresses and with 1960s' beehive hairdos, The Estrellas – which is Spanish for "stars" – look the part

The show consists of timeless soul and Motown classics featuring hit after hit from artists including Stevie Wonder, The Supremes, Tina Turner, Sam and Dave and the Marvelettes.

"The music has an enduring quality that has stood the test of time and appeals to all generations," said Ella Louise.

"It's not too long before we have audiences at the corporate events we do up on their feet and singing along and we guarantee the Dugdale's audience will be dancing in the aisles, too," she added.

Investigating the White House

TRUTH (15, 125 mins)

IN the same week that the Academy Awards bestowed best picture upon Spotlight, a real-life drama about the power of investigative journalism to expose corruption, Truth, opens a different chapter on the media and its practices.

Writer-director James Vanderbilt's handsome picture recreates the political firestorm that erupted when CBS News' esteemed programme 60 Minutes publicly called into question the military record of US President George W Bush.

Key pieces of paperwork, used by 60 Minutes as links in a chain of evidence, were subsequently discredited and a key witness confessed he had lied about their providence.

Heads rolled at CBS including producer Mary Mapes, who recalled her version of events in the memoir Truth And Duty, and President Bush was inaugurated for a second term at the White House.

Truth distills turbulent events from this period into an engrossing portrait of flawed ambition.

In April 2004, Mapes (Cate Blanchett) gathers together a crack team including journalism professor Lucy Scott (Elisabeth Moss) and researcher Mike Smith (Topher Grace) to dissect a potentially explosive story.

Lieutenant Colonel Roger Charles (Dennis Quaid) has acquired George W Bush's Texas Air National Guard file and it's curiously thin.

"You're telling me the President of the United States may have gone AWOL from the military for over a year?" gasps Lucy after Mike gives an overview of his findings.

Cate Blanchett as Mary Mapes
PA Photo/Warner Bros

The journalists dig deeper and they make contact with Lieutenant Colonel Bill Burkett (Stacy Keach), who claims to have some of the missing documents in his possession.

Understandably, the ailing veteran is reluctant to give testimony on camera for fear of the repercussions.

"We're 60 Minutes, we're the gold standard and we can help you," Mary assures him.

With the paperwork in place, anchorman Dan Rather (Robert Redford) headlines one of the most explosive editions of 60 Minutes on September 8, 2004, less than two months before the presidential elections.

Triumph turns to incredulity when bloggers pick holes in the 60 Minutes story, forcing Andrew Heyward (Bruce Greenwood), President of CBS News, to call into question the journalistic integrity of Mary and her team.

Truth is a fascinating, if somewhat simplistic, recreation of a behind-the-scenes battle that ended the careers of award-winning journalists behind and in front of the cameras.

Blanchett and Redford deliver compelling performances as the TV producer and news anchorman, whose reputations are stained by their involvement in the expose.

They elevate Vanderbilt's script and electrify their on-screen partnership, even when the film's pacing sags.

Supporting performances are solid, including Dermot Mulroney as the slippery lead council of a panel convened to cast aspersions on Mary's objectivity.

She fights tooth and nail to repel attacks on her integrity and Vanderbilt's picture lands decent blows in her honour.

LET YOUR PROPERTY WITH CONFIDENCE

Choosing the right letting agent is vital for marketing and managing your property to the highest standards. Therefore, it is important to judge an agent by the services they deliver as opposed to the price they charge to ensure your property is in safe hands. Richard Oughton from Ellis & Co in Enfield Town provides the essential checklist for landlords when searching for a letting agent.

Firstly, agents who are members of The Association of Residential Letting Agents (ARLA) all adhere to a strict Code of Practice. As such, they are required to promote high standards in the industry. Choosing a member agent in your local area will give you the added security of being able to contact the board if you feel they have breached the regulations. They provide a search engine on their website so you can find member agents in your area.

SAFE, an acronym for Safe Agent Fully Endorsed, is a trademark which indicates a letting agent protects its clients' money through protection schemes. This means that your money is guarded in a separate system to that used for running the business. SAFE agents are also required to possess professional indemnity insurance and a customer complaints procedure. It is essential that your letting agent is a SAFE member to ensure the business is certified to protect your money.

In addition, always verify that your letting agent has a deposit protection scheme. This provides security for both you and your tenant so the deposit can only be deducted if damage is made to the property, rent or bills are unpaid, or both parties fail to comply with the letting agreement. Agents who use a deposit protection scheme are compliant of the correct industry procedure which indicates that they have a high regard for financial security.

Letting agents should always provide Rent Warranty; a system which protects landlords against tenants who withhold rent. This will cover the cost of rent should an unforeseen circumstance occur. Always enquire about Rent Warranty and possible eventualities to ensure you receive owed income.

Finally, there are many boards offering training and examinations for letting agents. The ARLA, NFOPP and City & Guilds, for example, are widely recognised and provide specialist training to letting agents. Choosing an agency which provides their staff with training schemes and examinations guarantee that your property will be expertly managed.

Using this checklist will help you find the right letting agent for your property. It is imperative that your property, tenants and money are all protected using established schemes. By using an expert professional, you will be able to relax, safe in the knowledge that your property is well taken care of.

For more information or assistance regarding Letting and Managing your property contact Richard from Ellis and Co. at 58 Church Street, Enfield EN2 6AX. Tel 020 8363 8282 or email enfield@ellisandco.co.uk

info

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

We'll give you the best of both worlds - every week, all week!

The Advertiser series of newspapers is distributed every week and the latest editions can be found on our website at www.enfield-today.co.uk

Capita, in partnership with the London Borough of Barnet, provides a wide range of traded services that can be purchased annually by academies and schools.

We currently require flexible people with relevant experience to join our busy Schools' Finance Support team.

School's Accountant

Term time only, working hours part-time up to 37.5 hours per week

With experience of accounting systems and budgeting, you must be able to relate to a wide range of people and be able to explain financial matters to non-financial people at various levels. You will need to interpret financial information and analyse financial procedures and advise Headteachers and Governors of appropriate action to ensure sound financial management.

Good computer skills are required and experience of accounting packages and spreadsheets is essential.

You must have relevant financial experience, and be either AAT or part/full qualified accountant or have another relevant qualification.

Finance Assistant

With experience of accounts and other financial work, you must be able to relate to a wide range of people, and be able to communicate effectively with non-financial staff. Numerate and methodical, you must be able to produce accurate accounts and clear records. You should be able to use a computerised accounting package and spreadsheets.

For either post you will be working in schools in or around LB Barnet but also on occasions at the team's office base at North London Business Park, London N11 1NP.

A car is needed for journeys to schools and car mileage is payable.

Apply via email to Tegan King at Tegan.King@capita.co.uk or contact on 01256 383 781.

ROSE DELIGHTED BY CRUCIAL GOAL

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

DANNY ROSE expressed his delight after scoring the winner as Tottenham Hotspur came from behind to beat Swansea City 2-1 on Sunday to remain just two points off the top of the Premier League table.

Although Spurs dominated the game virtually throughout, they fell behind to an Alberto Paloschi goal on 17 minutes and had to wait until the 70th minute for Nacer Chadli to get them back on level terms.

Rose then struck the decisive blow seven minutes later as Tottenham recorded their sixth straight league win to remain hot on the heels of leaders Leicester City.

"It was an unbelievable three points," Rose said. "If we hadn't won I would have felt really deflated because of the amount of chances we created – I haven't witnessed a goalkeeping performance like that since I've been playing, Lukasz Fabianski was brilliant."

"We got a bit of a telling off from the manager at half-time, saying we didn't give them enough respect in the first 20 minutes, and the attitude in the second half was brilliant."

"I managed to score four goals last season and I wanted to try and build on that this season. I've not managed to do that, so it was a great occasion for me and I'm delighted with the three points."

"We created a lot of chances and didn't give up. If we hadn't won the game that would have been one positive, not giving up, but now it's not about how you play, it's all about the result."

Rose added: "This is the business end of the season. I've been here a long time and I don't think I've been in this position. It's testing times at the minute and you find out how many characters you have in the squad."

"Since I've been here, I don't think there has been a week like we're about to have now with West Ham and the derby on Saturday. This sets us up nicely for West Ham and I'm thoroughly looking forward to it."

Despite Tottenham's lofty position in the league table, head coach Mauricio Pochettino is not getting carried away by their success ahead of a pivotal few days for the side – with tonight's tough trip to in-form West Ham United being followed by the north London derby at home to Arsenal on Saturday.

"Nobody speaks about the title in our dressing room," he said. "We believe we can win every game and we'll see what happens. Now we need to focus again. We have a strong squad and we will try to manage it in the right way."

"It's not important that Arsenal lost on Sunday. What is important is our own performance, and there are still 11 Premier League games ahead."

"The team fought, tried to score and played well. Fabianski was great. He was man of the match. But I have to congratulate our players because of the energy we showed and the way we kept trying was fantastic. In the end we fully deserved our victory."

"The three points is very important. I'm very pleased for the team. The players deserve it because they work so hard on the training ground. We have a squad that deserves to be in the position we're in, and for that I'm very proud."

Tottenham's hero: Danny Rose's goal helped snatch Sunday's crucial victory at home to Swansea

Borough lifted by Cathline's late strike

SUBSTITUTE Alex Cathline scored the only goal as Haringey Borough edged to a 1-0 victory at Wroxham in Ryman League Division One North on Saturday.

Cathline struck with time running out to seal maximum points for a Borough side who struggled to break down their lowly hosts for long spells before ultimately claiming a win which saw them climb up into 16th place in the table.

Jamie Forshaw fired into the side netting for the hosts after 15 minutes, while Anthony McDonald and Dean Fenton both failed to hit the target when presented with opportunities for the visitors.

It was Wroxham who came closest to breaking the deadlock in the first half five minutes before the interval when Jack Garrod surged down the right before firing against the post from a tight angle.

Borough keeper Ashlee Harris made a fine save to palm away Forshaw's half-volley two minutes into the second half, but the visitors increasingly began to take control as the second half progressed. McDonald had a shot palmed away by home keeper Elliot Pride, who then made a stunning save from an Ishmail Kamara header which had appeared destined to end up in the back of the net.

Rakim Richards almost gave the visitors the lead in remarkable fashion with an overhit cross from halfway which caught the wind and went just over with the keeper stranded, while a rare opportunity for Wroxham in the second half saw Stephen Taylor head over from the edge of the six-yard box.

And Borough finally got the goal they were looking for with six minutes remaining as Cathline latched on to a through-ball and calmly slotted beyond Pride and into the net to seal a win which saw them pull further clear of the relegation zone.

Haringey face home games against Witham Town on Saturday (3pm) and Wroxham on Tuesday (7.45pm).

Both games are currently scheduled to be played at Coles Park, but the ongoing problems with the pitch could see them switched to Tilbury's Chadfields ground.

Skolars crash out of Challenge Cup

THE London Skolars bowed out of the Ladbrokes Challenge Cup in hugely disappointing fashion on Saturday as they lost 13-0 at amateur outfit Pilkington Recs in the third round.

The semi-professional Skolars began the match as heavy favourites, and they twice went close to scoring tries in the first 15 minutes through Alex Anthony and Mike Bishay.

But the hosts held firm and grew in confidence as the first half progressed, more than holding their own as the interval was reached with the score still 0-0.

And it was Pilkington Recs who eventually broke the deadlock in the early stages of the second half, with Kyran Knapper scoring a try which Greg Smith converted.

A long-range drop-goal from Smith extended their advantage, and the hosts made sure of a memorable victory when Andrew Knapper grabbed a late converted try.

Despite the disappointing final outcome for the Skolars, skipper Dave Williams was able to look back on the day with some pride as he made his 100th appearance for the club.

"It's an honour to play 100 games for the London Skolars," he said. "It's something I'm really pleased of and pleased to have achieved with this great club."

"I'm not the most vocal captain. I'm not a big talker – I leave that for the half-backs. They always have lots to say, while I'm more about leading by my actions on and off the field and sharing my experience and things I've learned along the way with the younger players in the squad."

"I remember when I first started playing there were only three or four rugby league clubs in London and now there are a lot more."

"I know at Skolars we've got a growing juniors and minis section as part of our award-winning community department, so there's definitely been a lot more activity and opportunity for kids to play rugby league."

The London Skolars begin their campaign in Kingstone Press Championship One at York City Knights on Sunday.
